

ONLINE WORKSHOP

Decentering Whiteness & Building Multiracial Community

For all people who want to work against racism. This interactive workshop looks at racial structure and compares various approaches currently used to work at undoing it. The Decentering Whiteness model developed by CSWAC* will be presented and discussed in depth.

This workshop will give you some basic knowledge about:

- current models and approaches
- decentering whiteness, as a goal
- building multiracial community, as a goal
- why these two goals go hand in hand

The workshop touches on several topics, including:

- basic concepts important to a multiracial perspective
- centered and decentered whiteness
- features of whiteness as centered
- decentering these same features of whiteness
- envisioning a multiracial community
- how to begin building multiracial community
- requirements for multiracial community building

The workshop takes place over three 2-hour sessions:

Wednesday, April 15, 22 & 29
7-9PM Eastern
4-6PM Pacific

Registration: $95 (covers all three sessions plus a free Zoom tutorial)

Join us in this guided experience at a location of your choice using the Zoom online conferencing app.

Can't make all three dates? No problem. Video recordings are available to all registered participants for later review.

REGISTER NOW

<https://conta.cc/2tYOI8r>

Or for more information, including also registration, see euroamerican.org

*This workshop is brought to you by the Center for the Study of White American Culture (CSWAC), a multiracial organization whose mission is to build an equitable society in the United States by decentering white culture and centering an anti-racist multiracial culture free of white supremacy. Learn more about us at euroamerican.org